

Correction: Enhancement to Options Market Maker Registration Duration

Reference ID: C2018110100

Overview

BZX Options and EDGX Options Market Makers are currently able to register for products in which they wish to quote by using the Market Maker Registration Tool within the Cboe Customer Web Portal and Secure Web API. When registering by underlying, this tool allows for the optional use of a user-specified maximum registration period. This limits the series registration to only series expiring within the specified number of days in the future.

The original implementation excluded the current trading day when calculating the registration expiration date. As a result, any Member selecting to remain registered for products expiring 30 days in the future actually remained registered in those products for 31 days.

Technical Details (CORRECTION)

Effective November 2, 2018, the Market Maker Registration Tool will be updated to register users in the selected series for a specified number of days in the future which includes the current trading date. For example, a value of 1 day will allow a Market Maker to register in only those series expiring on the current date.

Additional Information

For additional information on the Market Maker Registration Tool, refer to the following technical specifications.
