

Cboe Disaster Recovery Data Center Migration for the Cboe Global Index Platform in September 2020

Reference ID: C2020060504

Overview

As previously announced, Cboe plans to move out of 400 S. La Salle in Chicago over the next two years. In preparation for this move, please be advised that in September 2020, the Disaster Recovery ("DR") environment for the Cboe Global Index Platform, which delivers data for index values over CSMI, MSCI, FTSE, CCCY and INAV DR data channels, will be relocated from 400 S. La Salle (Chicago) to reside at 350 Cermak (Chicago).

This September 2020, data center migration will be seamless and will require no customer updates. Target network addresses and ports for the index platform and data channels (CSMI, MSCI, FTSE, CCCY and INAV) will not be modified and firm and vendor connectivity to the DR environments will continue to be supported from both 350 Cermak and 400 S. La Salle at this time.

Migration Schedule

Saturday, September 19, 2020: Customer and Vendor Connectivity and Heartbeat Testing Opportunity of New Cboe Global Index Platform DR Environment

Sunday, September 20, 2020: New Cboe Global Index Platform DR Environment Live in 350 Cermak
