

Cboe Europe Annual Disaster Recovery Test

OVERVIEW

Applicable Cboe Exchanges: Cboe Europe Equities ("BXE," "CXE," "DXE," "TRF", "SIS") and Cboe Europe Derivatives ("CEDX").

On Saturday, 13th September 2024, Cboe Europe (Cboe) will be conducting its annual disaster recovery (DR) test for the Production BXE, CXE, DXE, TRF, SIS (Equities) and CEDX (Derivatives) environments.

The purpose of this testing day is for Cboe to simulate various DR failover scenarios, including a test of market failover from its primary data centre at Equinix Slough (LD4) to its secondary data centre at Equinix Park Royal (LD3).

While Participant attendance is not mandatory, it is strongly recommended. This exercise provides Participants with a valuable opportunity to observe the functionality of their trading, quoting, trade reporting, and market data applications in the event of a disaster recovery (DR) incident at Cboe. Additionally, Cboe has observed increasing interest from its supervisory authorities regarding Participants' engagement in these DR tests.

Participants should note the following:

- Change Freeze – Participants wishing to take part in the DR test must submit any outstanding requests for new ports by 16:00 UK time on Thursday 11th September. No new port requests will be processed on Friday 12th September.
- Production Data – Please ensure that your Production systems are not configured to send Production trade reports when Cboe systems come up on the morning of Saturday 13th September, as all data from that day will be discarded as test data.
- Schedule of Activities – This will be published closer to the day.
- Connectivity testing – We strongly encourage Participants to test connectivity to logical ports at Equinix Park Royal (LD3) DR data centre ahead of the DR test day.
